THE RINEHART® STANDING ELK™ TARGET IS SO LIFELIKE – YOU’LL START TO HEAR BUGLES COME OUT OF YOUR BACKYARD

While strategy and finesse are the name of the game when hunting elk, you’ll go home empty handed without a perfectly executed shot that’ll take down that big bull. And if you’re not prepared with a winning shot in your back pocket, you may as well head back to camp. That’s why Rinehart® Targets continues to provide bowhunters with ‘real life’ practice with its Rinehart Standing Elk™ Target, ensuring no priceless archery opportunity gets missed when in the field.

The Rinehart Standing Elk Target is so lifelike, you’ll think this massive animal strayed from the Rockies and landed in your backyard, just so you could get in some archery practice. It’s so realistic in fact, it mimics the size, anatomy and appearance of the real thing. With its detailed sculpting and design that outlines the animals “vitals” area, bowhunters will gain practical experience that will ultimately translate into greater confidence and accuracy in the field.

Rinehart Targets are built to take the toughest punishment — weatherproof and so durable they can survive even the harshest conditions. The Rinehart Standing Elk Target boasts Rinehart’s signature solid self-healing foam body, allowing this Elk to take hits from fieldpoints to broadheads and even expandables, which heal in seconds. Thanks to this innovative technology, the rugged Rinehart Standing Elk Target can handle your best shots over and over and still stand strong for seasons to come. Plus, this rugged target is hassle-free as its unique Rinehart solid self-healing foam allows every arrow to pull out with ease — eliminating the need for additional arrow-pulling devices. This unique target also features Rinehart’s patented locking inserts, which are a cost-effective way to further extend the life and enjoyment of the target by easily replacing its core outlined “vitals” area with a new core.

The life-like Rinehart Standing Elk Target features a simulated weight of 600 pounds and stretches a whopping 52”H X 60”L. While you’d need a team of hunting buddies to help you move such a real big bull, this Elk target can be set up in a snap when it’s time for practice, and easily stored away during the off-season.
