RINEHART TARGETS® INTRODUCES THE NEW-FOR-2012 WOODLAND 16™ CUBE TARGET Award-Winning Design Delivers Superior Performance For An Unbeatable Value

Leading target manufacturer Rinehart Targets® has expanded its award-winning family of high-performance practice targets in 2012 with its newest addition to the popular Woodland series, the new Woodland 16™ target. This new cube-shaped target features the company's latest Solid FX Foam™ technology, designed with the utmost function and durability all for an unbeatable suggested retail price of just $119.

The new Woodland 16 is a perfect cube shape measuring 16"x16"x16". Rinehart's secret weapon when designing this affordable target is its composition — it's completely filled from corners to core with the company's latest Solid FX Foam. This unique foam makes the Woodland 16 virtually indestructible no matter what comes flying its way — broadheads, field points or expandables. Its unmatched level of durability coupled with such an attractive price tag makes this new target a must-have accessory for any shooter.

Experienced and novice shooters alike will dig the target's six sides complete with highly visible target zones, perfect for both long and short range practice. Featuring some of the same design elements and target zones of the popular Rinehart RhinoBrute target, the new Woodland 16 is perfect for honing and practicing consistent arrow shooting and placement. Adding to the target's unmatched levels of versatility, shooters can also easily post their favorite paper target.

Thanks to its lightweight construction and handy rope handle, the new Woodland 16 makes it nearly effortless to grab, toss and take your best shot. Plus, its convenient square shape slips right into your truck bed or SUV, and easily travels right along with you to camp and back. And, with extreme resistance to sun, heat and cold, this target is ready for action all year long — rain or shine.
